The exhibition features the famous World Map of 1526 by Giovanni Vespucci, and culminates with Sorolla's colourful, large-scale study for his monumental series of fourteen paintings, Vision of Spain.

Founded in New York in 1904, the Hispanic Society Museum & Library is home to the most extensive collection of Spanish art outside of Spain. Presented for the first time in the UK, it will offer visitors a chance to trace the cultural and religious influences that shaped Spanish culture, from Celtic, Islamic, Jewish and Christian to American, African and Asian.

GETTING THERE: We shall catch the 9.53 train from Oxted to Victoria arriving at 10.33, then the tube to Green Park tube station which is a few minutes' walk from the Royal Academy. I hope to book tickets at 11.20/11.40.
